

The conception among all ancient people was:— that in the beginning when the Creation of the universe was begun, it commenced by Four great Commands from the Deity. These commands had various names given them by the various ancients such as:—

The Sacred Four;— The Builders;— The Four Great Kings, The Four Great Intellectual Commands, The Dhyana Cohans or the Four Great Maharajas & But by whatever name they were called, these Four Great Building Commands commenced the Creation of the Universe by bringing law, order and form out of Chaos.

From various writings of these people I find that they dedicated their temples to The Sacred Four. One inscription reads:—

"This temple is dedicated to the Great Creator who by His four great Commands brought law, form and order out of Chaos."

I think this is a fair general reading of these temple dedications. Apparently, occasionally, they vary somewhat in phraseology, yet this apparent variation may be due to faulty or imperfect translation on my part.

The utmost anyone can do in deciphering and translating ancient inscriptions and
