

After serving the City of Mexico as sources of building material for more than three hundred years, these pits have enabled me to make an extensive examination of a vast ruin which is probably as old as Thebes, and whose civilization was comparable with that of Babylon and Nineveh.